

Sunday, September 29

Here are a few questions from our Bible readings on Sunday morning that may lead us and our relationships to be more fully in Christ. Don't try to answer them all, or even remember them all. But listen for a question that God might be asking you personally, and work with that one.

- Does my heart want to turn away from God or his ways in any area of my life? What am I going to do about that this week?
- Have I drifted away from being in Christ myself in some way? What am I going to do about that this week?
- How am I doing at encouraging others every day? What am I going to do about that this week?
- Have I been hardened in any way by sin's deceitfulness? What am I going to do about that this week?
- How am I doing at committing to Jesus' way and re-choosing it in the face of temptation to choose otherwise? What am I going to do about that this week?
- In which of my relationships is God calling me make space for the KOG to take another step forward? Or to make it easier for everyone to see and choose Jesus' way? What am I going to do about that this week?
